MASTER OF DISGUISE FOUND

Police in Yorkshire have finally arrested Charles Fleur de Lys, the celebrated "Master of Disguise".

Whilst on the run from Haverby Prison, the renegade was said to have used up to 300 different disguises in order to allude capture.

Police found de Lys hiding out in a cove near Halifax, claiming to be airline tycoon Freddie Laker. To clarify the situation, police paid a visit to Laker's home, only to find the businessman returning from a fancy dress party, dressed as de Lys.

MASTER OF DISGUISE FOUND

It was only Mr Laker's detailed knowledge of air routes and duty-free legislation that prevented the celebrated boss being arrested as de Lys. "It was a terrible experience" said Laker "but it was the last outfit in the shop".

ROYAL FAMILY LOSES BATTLE OF THE BANDS

The Queen has lost the right to the sole use of her name, a High Court judge ruled yeterday. Her Royal Highness had attempted to stop a pop music band using her name, citing "royal exclusivity", a law which dates from 1606.

However, the judge stated that the law could not be honoured as the parchment it was written on had rotted.

A spokesman for the band, who cannot be named for legal reasons, said they were "delighted" with the outcome.

PLASTICS GIANT SHEDS HUNDREDS OF JOBS

The plastics and textiles manufacturer Arnold Lovechampagne has sacked over 600 of its workers.

Managing Director Walt Lovechampagne angered unions by giving no motive for the dismissals, other than "personal reasons", during a press conference.

Mr. Lovechampagne went on to explain that the large number of empty seats at the company's upcoming Annual General Meeting would be filled by models of skeletons.

NEW CURRENCY LAUNCHED

The Bank of England introduced the latest additions to its currency portfolio today.

The long-awaited £3.33 note, which began circulation this morning, is oval shaped and bears the face of Robin Hood Snr, the father of the famous outlaw.

The bank also launched Spending-Sand (TM), a fine copper dust which replaces existing copper coinage.

Spending-Sand, which equates to 0.000001p per grain, was called "the currency of the future" by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Dr Mephisto.

BR ABANDONS ATLANTIC RAIL LINK

British Rail announced today that they would not be completing their proposed Atlant-link railway line, blaming "major unforseen difficulties".

A BR Spokesman explained that most of the 3000 mile railway line, which spans the Atlantic between Cornwall and New Jersey, had either "rusted or become encrusted with barnacles".

The iron rails are to be melted down by the army and turned into emergency horseshoes in an effort to repair the damage done by the recent blacksmith's strike.

COOING FOR PYNES

Pynes & Co, the London based store, has opened a new department, pigeonware.

Among the items on offer are claw ringlets, wing wax, birdseed and beak clamps, although pigeons themselves will not be sold.

MONEY MATTERS 1/2

"Investing in an IPR is the only sensible piece of financial advice one can give these days", says former Chancellor to the Exchequor William Travers.

Travers was speaking as part of the Money Matters Roadshow, being held all this week at the Midas Centre in Birmingham. "A fluctuating pound spells disaster for the first time home owner" said Travers, "putting your money in a direct assured IPR, linked to a voluntary bond equity trust, is a very prudent step"

£INANCIAL NEWS

MONEY MATTERS 2/2

"If every man were to invest £30 in an IPR, and every woman were to invest £20 in an IPR, then the Bank of England would be forced to rethink its position over single-geared fiscal trusts. At the same time, the government would have to redraft its policy over statutory investment accounts, forcing the Common Market to re-evaluate its stance over index linked dividends (pollies)."

As part of his presentation, Travers burnt £120 in French Francs, which angered a number of visiting French businessmen.

FARMING NEWS

THE PRINCE AND THE PORKER

Britain's second pig farm, owned and run entirely by pigs, opened today in Gavon, Staffordshire. Speaking through an interpreter, the farm's director, Curly Robeson, promised "the finest pig meat in the country".

Prince Charles carried out the official opening, saying the farm "promises a great opportunity for man and pig to work together". The Prince went on to add that "pigs are easily the equal of man in terms of business acumen".

FUN and GAMES !!!!!

STICKY RICE

Here's a simple toy that's easy to make and fun to play with...

You will need: A small piece of putty
One grain of rice
One tablespoon of water

Take the grain of rice and soak it in the water. Next, place the wet grain inside the putty. Leave for 40 mins.

When the time is up, remove the grain of rice. You are now left with a piece of rice that has expanded due to the absorption of water - plus a piece of putty to play with! Have fun!

FUN and GAMES !!!!!

BOX CLEVER

Take an ordinary cardboard box and fill it up with sand.

Place a piece of chalk inside the box (make sure it is well-hidden in the sand!)

Now, it's time to invite adults to find the chalk. IMPORTANT: The adults MUST be blindfolded and have their hands tightly bound behind their back.

Have fun!

FUN and GAMES !!!!!

WEATHER VAIN

Take a household barometer and carefully remove the glass cover. (You will need an adult to help you).

Take out the gauge and anything else within the instrument so that all that remains is the casing.

Cut a piece of mirrored glass to fit the casing (again, you will need to get an adult to help).

You now have a mirror where once was a barometer, so now you can look at yourself- whatever the weather! Have fun!
